The Calcutta mail of Nov. 9 arrived at Suez on the 5th December. Lord Clyde marched to attack Amethee on the on the 9th November. The Rajah submitted and entered the British camp, and the fort surrendered. On the 11th the Sepoys fled from Gewarree, which was captured by the English. General Kerr occupied Kapoor Karia on the 4th.

China. Thursday, the 25th November, was observed by a portion of the residents of Shanghae as a Thanksgiving Day. A public service was held at 11 A-M., in the chapel of the London Missionary Society. The devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Bridgman, and a discourse adapted to the occasion was preached by the Rev. J. S. Burdon. As this sermon will probably be published in a short time, it will be best to defer any notice of its several topics and their treatment.

The observance of the day, however, being a transfer to these shores of a custom which prevails over a considerable portion of the United States, is an interesting fact in itself; and the number of persons who attended this service, taken in connection with their diversities of country and denomination, showed that the custom, however local in its origin, commended itself to the minds and hearts of many .- North China Herald.

H. B. M.'s steam- sloop Inflexible, 6 guns, Commander Brooker, arrived on Thursday from Hong Kong, having called in at Foochow. After delivering provisions, stores, &c., which she has for H. M.'s ships at the northern stations, she will to California.

The Peninsular Correspondente says :- The news which the electric telegraph has brought concerning the Message of the President of the United States has produced a great sensation in this city, and has already been commented on by the daily journals in a tone of offended national pride, which might naturally be expected.

Turkey.

A letter from Jaffa, dated December 2, says that no punishment has yet been inflicted on the five Mussulmans arrested for the murder of an American family in the neighborhood of Jaffa. The Americans have threatened to bombard Jaffa if justice be not executed, and if they keep their word they will have to come to that extremity. The guilty parties are all at Beyrout, and may possibly Chile.

VALPARAISO, Jan. 16 .- The news by this mail is of a highly important character, both from Chile and Peru. The revolutionary movement, which has been so long smouldering in Chile appears at length to be bursting out into a flame, and there is a prospect of the existing Government being overthrown, if the opposition-party, are only fortunate enough to hit upon a good leader.

The Mercurio, one of the best papers in the country, has been suspended on account of the publication of some articles which did not meet the views of the Government, and this step alone, in a country professing such entire liberty as Chile, shows how afraid the authorities are of their position. The merchants of Valparaiso have encouraged the publication of another paper in lieu of El Mercurio, entitled El Comercio. The provinces of Valparaiso, Santiago and Aconcagua, have been declared under martial law for the space of ninety days, and several political papers suppressed and arrests made of parties accused of conspiracy against the existing government. Mexico. The London Times (City Article) of Jan. 3 says: The advices from Mexico this afternoon confirm the worst accounts of the horrors in progress in that republic, and reiterate the surprise already expressed at the total apathy of the British government as respects the protection of either the personal or commercial interests of our people, which at least quadruple those of any other country. Our pecuniary claims alone range between ten and fifteen millions sterling, and the outrages on our merchants have far exceeded those which any of the conflicting chiefs have dared to inflict on the citizens of other countries. A seizure of the richest mining provinces of the State has been recommended by the American President; three Spanish and four French ships of war have arrived off Vera Cruz, but, "unfortunately," it is added, "the Union Jack has not made its appearance." Some incidental expressions in the annexed letter convey an opinion that, owing to the great mineral wealth of the country, its possession by the United States might result in a dangerous preponderance of American power. On that head, however, no alarm need be felt. America cannot gain the Cimmerian gloom !" any real benefit from the resources of Mexico which will not also be an equal benefit to the world, while from any wrong she might commit she alone could ultimately be the sufferer. As the case stands at present, the only question is, is equal justice to be obtained by the several nations that have reclamations to make? Mr. Buchanan advises a seizure of territory, to be held as a material guarantee for the satisfaction of the demands of his countrymen-a course, he observes, which would be sanctioned "by international law." But is each nation to do the same, or will America act as agent and trustee for all? If two or three provinces are to be taken in execution for the Washington bill of £3,000,000, how many is England to seize for her £12,000,000? What, also, are to be the portions of France and Spain ! Yera Cruz is the least that England could lay hold of, and France, perhaps, might be content with Tampico. Spain had better occupy the capital itself, where she will find the willing devotion of the priests. Will Lord Malmesbury state his policy, or is he afraid of the trouble of having one ! There is no indisposition in England to see America assume her natural part as a pacificator and regenerator of Mexico, but it should be upon understood principles. The sooner these are made known the better, because hitherto there have been symptoms in the New York press that the American policy is intended to cover something not reputable. There are two parties in Europe accustomed to express opinions on this matter; one of them desires to see America opposed either by intrigue or a hostile combination; the other conor cruelty it will be a happy thing to see Mexico without sacrificing the interests of his family.

A Yankee's Autobiography.

Sir, I was born and raised in Connecticut, Bolted to sea, and wrecked in Japan; Quite a respectable figure I 'spect I cut, When coming back, to keep school I began.

Guess at the saw-mill I proved a top-sawyer, And, as a minister, made a small splurge; Reckon I felt more at home as a lawyer, Ere, as a doctor, I learned how to purge.

But the long words in the medical lexicon Soon I forgot from a couple of years Spent in campaigning against the darned Mexican, When I commanded the Bragg Volunteers.

Just for a change, then, a paper I edited, Scorched politicisns and pitched into books : That was before I was envoy accredited, Austrian plenipo-General Snooks.

'T is a slow life, that of minister-resident, Posting despatches to Kings and what not ; But, as they propose to run me for President, Hanged if I care to repine at my lot.

The Wonders of Japan.

The description given of Japan by some of the members of Lord Elgin's suit, rivals that of the enchanted island in the Arabian Nights. "Noproceed to Nangasaki, with twelve shipwrecked thing can exceed the picturesque beauty of the bay Japanese that were picked up by Capt. Winches of Nagasaki, and the situation of the city at its ter, of the British ship Carribean, about 1,600 extremity. Swelling hills covered with verdure from their country, on his passage from Hongkong | rise from the water's edge. The thatched roofs of snug cottages peep from out the dense foliage No later news has reached us from Lord Elgin's amid which they nestle. Precipitous walls of expedition in the Yang-tsze Kiang. The Chinese rock are mirrored in the azure blue of the waters steamer Confucius has returned from near Nan- at their base. The Japanese are courteous, affaking, and brings a confirmation of the account | ble, gentlemanlike and good natured, quite differpublished by us last Saturday, that there had ent from the description our disinterested friends, tion with rebels about Woohoo. The Chinese | "Jeddo, the capital, is larger than London, and have, as usual, various reports on the subject, but | contains 3,000,000 of people. The leading street no reliance can be placed on them. It is nearly | is ten miles long, and closely packed with stuccoed four weeks since the expedition left, and as its re- houses. Here are the palaces of 360 of the heredturn is hourly expected, we must await that event | itary princes, each a sovereign in his own dominions, but compelled to reside in the metropolis for six months of the year. Some of the mansions are built to hold 10,000 retainers. The palace of the secular king is surrounded with a tripple wall, and gives lodging to 40,000 people. The streets are spacious, clean and airy; no dirt, no smell, no street obstructions.

" In this country every cottage, temple and teahouse is surrounded by gardens laid out in exquisite taste. Tea-houses are found in every shady nook, or by pleasant rivers. The tea is served by the ministrations of fair damsels; who glide noiselessly and rapidly about, suspecting no indecorum and meaning none."

"Strange that we should have known so little of this modern Atalanta, this beauteous isle set in the silver sea! Stranger still that they should have worked out so perfect and yet so grotesque a species of civilization, like the devices in their own ware, odd, and startling, but minutely finished off. Here we have two kings; one spiritual, who can trace up his lineage for 2,500 years; the other secular, who commands the forces, both dwelling in the same city like brothers. The Japanese seem to be the most impressible nation on earth; whatever they see they imitate-telescopes, aneroids, steam engines, spy glasses, &c .- and yet they have hitherto locked themselves up within an impenetrable barrier.

"Our exports to Japan, last year, amounted to £200. Surely this wonderful people must have something to export and something to import, too. They will not export any manufactured articles, but they will readily import them. Our warm woolens and stout cottons are just the thing for the northern districts. We trust that our manufacturers are awake to this market, and will not allow themselves to be beaten, as they were in China, by the Americans and Russians, even in our staple manufactures."-[Liverpool Courier.

Terrific Adventure in Palermo Coal Hole. in Kansas.

A couple of days ago a young gentleman of this city, who never " trembled at mortal terror," being upon the bank of the river, just below the city, in company with Professor Y. and others, determined, no matter what the dangers and difficulties might be, to explore the depths of a large hole made in the ground by a party of English miners digging for coal.

Mr. M., " the enterprising proprietor" of the hole, " procured a long rope of great strength for the purpose." The arrangements being soon completed, the rope, with a heavy tub "attached to it was let down and swung to and fro to dislodge" any loose particles of clay or flint that would be likely to fall at the touch, " several were thus dislodged," and the long-continued listening, without hearing any distant thunder below, "proclaimed the depth of the horrid chasm." "Then the young hero of the occasion, with a wide brimmed hat drawn over his head to protect it" from a few tons of rock and earth " falling from above," and several night caps poured into his throat to protect it from any unpleasant sensations, and with one foot in the tub and one hand on the rope, "took his place over the awful pit, and was let down into

We have from his own lips an account of his descent. " Occasionally masses of earth and rock' didn't "go whizzing past," but some of the earth stuck fast to his clothes. About four feet from the top he came to a ledge from which, he should judge, there were not any "avenues leading off in different directions." About thirty feet "from the top, a cataract from the side of the pit went rushing down the abyss," over a small shingle, and as he descended by the side of the water, in the midst of the spray, he felt some apprehension lest the starch should be taken out of his shirt collar. "He was landed at the bottom of the top, sixty feet from the pit, and found it almost perfectly circular," about three feet in diameter, " with a small opening" made by a drill leading somewhere down

"He found beautiful specimens of" soft soap stone, and also a " multitude of exquisite " particles of sulphur "as pure and yellow as virgin cream." "Making himself heard with a great effort, he told his friends to pull him partly up;" " reaching the mouth of an immense cave he swung his arm into it, with much exertion, and found it blocked with an impassable avalanche" of solid earth. "Holding the rope in the other hand," he incautiously failed to let go it, much to the regret of his friends, who now commenced the "exceedingly severe pull" of getting him up. "But soon he was in a new and dreadful peril.'

When he was about fifteen feet from the top. 'swaying and swinging" in the tub, " he heard rapid and excited worde above," and soon learned siders that if it can be managed without dishonor "and that those who were hauling him up," had at once placed under restraint by the superior race. awful suspense ensued," when he was made aware York.
